Community Engagement: Putting the “Public” Back in Public Health
Eileen Forlenza
Senior Account Executive for Government Relations, SAS
Former Director, Family and Community Engagement at Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment
Past President, Association of Maternal and Child Health Programs
How do we best put the “public” back in “public health” and engage communities to help achieve health equity? In this plenary session, we will discover innovative solutions and learn why community engagement is a quality improvement strategy across multiple systems. Blending strategy and storytelling from her lived experience, Eileen’s inspirational message will help us realize how to work “horizontally” with community partners despite the “vertical” organization of our systems.
2:00 pm – 2:20 pm  BREAK
2:00 pm – 5:30 pm  SILENT AUCTION
2:20 pm – 3:20 pm

Plenary Session 2

Zika Response: CDC Update

Melody Stevens, MA
Deputy Associate Director for Partnerships
National Center for Birth Defects and Developmental Disabilities
Deputy Policy Lead/2016 CDC Zika Virus Response
Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Melody leads the public-private partnerships team for CDC’s Zika response. She joined the response last January and has worked closely with the CDC Foundation, an independent, not-for-profit establishment to help CDC forge public-private partnerships to enable the agency to do more, faster.

3:45 pm – 4:45 pm

CONCURRENT WORKSHOPS

Workshop #1

Implementing a Public Health Curriculum in our Schools to Build the Public Health Workforce for the Future

Sloan Hudson, Career Cluster Consultant
(Health, Science, Law & Public Safety)
Tennessee Department of Education

This session will explore how high school curricula can be tailored to provide relevant information that helps students better understand future public health career opportunities. The Public Health program of study available to our high school students (including the Health Occupations Students of America (HOSA) Public Health Scholars program) engages them in discussions of policy, essential public health services, as well as the specific roles and responsibilities of staff. The desired outcome is to continue to build the public health workforce for the future.

Workshop #2

Marijuana as Medicine—Unintended Consequences and Concerns

Michael Warren, MD, MPH, Deputy Commissioner of Population Health
Tennessee Department of Health

David Reagan, MD, PhD, Chief Medical Officer
Tennessee Department of Health

Marijuana has been hailed as an effective treatment for everything from diabetes to writer’s cramp. Yet the evidence for the benefits of marijuana as medicine are less robust and there are substantial population health concerns with introducing another addictive substance into the therapeutic mix. This workshop will provide an overview of the evidence on the individual health benefits of marijuana as well as the associated population harms.

Workshop #3
What Should We Do to Address the Social Determinants of Health? Lessons From Research and the Real World

Arjumand Siddiqi, MPH, ScD
Associate Professor, Office of Global Public Health Education and Training
Dalla Lana School of Public Health at the University of Toronto

This session will identify the main pathways/mechanisms through which social determinants influence health. Participants will learn to identify and understand the strengths and disadvantages of the main intervention strategies that are used to address social determinants of health in public health practice. In addition, the session will focus on new promising strategies for addressing social determinants of health.

Workshop #4
Caries Prevention in Interprofessional Settings: Updates on Fluorides and Sealants

Margherita Fontana, DDS, PhD
Professor, Department of Cariology
Restorative Sciences and Endodontics at University of Michigan School of Dentistry

Dental caries is a common and debilitating disease, extremely expensive to treat, yet completely preventable. Participants will gain a current understanding of the disease process within the context of existing projects focused on integrating oral health screening and prevention into pediatric medical settings. The majority of the time will be devoted to discussing the mechanism on how fluoride products work and how/when they should be indicated by dental and non-dental providers. This session will conclude with a discussion of sealants and sealing carious lesions.

Workshop #5
Higher Education in Public Health 2.0: Overview of the New Curricular Requirements for Public Health Degree Programs

Laura King, MPH, MCHES
Executive Director, Council on Education for Public Health

The Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH) is the accrediting agency for university level public health academic programs nationwide. Recently, CEPH updated their accreditation criteria. In this workshop, a CEPH representative will discuss and clarify these new criteria. This workshop will be of particular interest to faculty or administrators preparing for application of accreditation or reaccreditation. Sponsored by the Academics Section.

Workshop #6

Lou Ann Grossberg, MA
Tobacco Research and Evaluation Team, University of Texas at Austin

Everyone agrees that the devil is in the evaluation. Evaluation of prevention initiatives is especially tough. As part of a partnership between the Texas Department of Health and the University of Texas, tobacco coalitions across the state receive evaluations of their tobacco prevention initiatives. Louise (Lou Ann) Grossberg, MA, formerly an epidemiologist in the Upper Cumberland Region, will describe the purpose and components of these process evaluations and how they relate to coalition sustainability.

Workshop #7
Public Health Nursing: A Key Partner for Healthy Populations in a Transformed Health System

Sharon Stanley, PhD, RN, RS, FAAN
Association of Public Health Nurses, Past President
Public Health Nurses have positively influenced the communities where people live, work and play since the inception of the practice. As the largest discipline in the field of Public Health, nursing practice has evolved over time to meet the ever-changing demands. This session will explore the opportunities ahead for public health nurses to lead and implement cost-effective population health strategies to advance improved health outcomes for all.

Workshop #8
Health Promotion in Aging

James Powers, MD
Professor of Medicine and Geriatric Medicine Program Director
Vanderbilt University School of Medicine

Currently, the general public only has a basic awareness about health promotion and aging. This workshop will focus on increasing knowledge and practical skills related to health promotion activities for seniors. Attendees will learn about the importance of considering health promotion efforts across the lifespan and strategies for addressing important health priorities as the population ages.

9:00 am – 9:30 am   BREAK
9:15 am – 5:30 pm   SILENT AUCTION
9:30 am – 10:30 am   CONCURRENT WORKSHOPS

Workshop #9
Moving the Needle on Population Health: Successful City/County Partnerships

Patrick Dean
Executive Director, Mountain Goat Trail Alliance

Patti Carroll
Mayor of Fairview

Justin Hanson
Mayor of Covington

As the Tennessee Department of Health continues to “partner and engage” with our communities, it is crucial for us to understand what our partners need and expect from us. This panel consists of three community leaders who participated in successful health initiatives with their local health departments. The panels will share the most valuable benefits of the health department as a community partner.
Workshop #10
Leveraging Academic Partners for Public Health Practice

William Keck, MD, MPH
Professor Emeritus of Family and Community Medicine
Northeastern Ohio Medical University

Academic Health Departments (AHD) are formalized partnerships between academic institutions and public health departments. This session will explore the concept of AHDs and how they can be utilized to increase capability and capacity for public health practice. Participants will engage in a discussion on how to become involved in an AHD partnership and how to expand or improve those partnerships currently in existence.

Workshop #11
Update on CSMD and Opiate Abuse Sequellae

Todd Bess, PharmD
Director of Tennessee Controlled Substances Monitoring Database Program
Tennessee Department of Health

The opioid epidemic is devastating communities in Tennessee with rural communities being impacted disproportionately. Winning the battle against abuse requires that we reframe our thinking about pain management and addiction, and that we arm our public health professionals with an understanding of what is going on in their communities. This involves working across departments, disciplines, and cultures to provide a forum for collaboration. This workshop will explore the ways in which Tennessee partners are collaborating to implement strategies to: improve primary prevention, improve monitoring and surveillance, improve regulation and enforcement, improve utilization and access to treatment, and increase access to appropriate pain management.

Workshop #12
Top Five Posters!

Paul Petersen, Pharm D
Director, Emergency Preparedness Program
Tennessee Department of Health

The top 5 Poster Presenters selected will be given the opportunity to share their work in a Poster Presentation Workshop during the conference. All of the 28 poster presenters will be prepared to present their work prior to the conference with the top 5 informed at the Conference after judging is complete. This rapid fire workshop will highlight the exciting Public Health activities ongoing in Tennessee.
10:30 am – 11:00 am  BREAK

10:35 am – 10:55 am  TUTORIAL
LexisNexis Solutions

This 20 minute workshop will provide a better understanding of public record data, where this information comes from and how they can be used to move cases off your desk. Also, this session will provide tips on navigating around Accurint for Government database and some new Reports, in order to more efficiently locate information that is beneficial for your respective caseloads.

11:00 am – 11:45 am  AWARDS LUNCHEON

11:45 am – 12:30 pm  AWARDS CEREMONY

12:30 pm – 1:30 pm  Commissioner’s Address
John J. Dreyzehner, MD, MPH, FACOEM
Commissioner
Tennessee Department of Health

The idea of livability sums up what makes a place or community truly attractive to people. In other words, what is it about a town that makes a high school student graduate, go off to college, and want to return to his or her hometown? Commissioner Dreyzehner will discuss the implications of livability on population health improvement before moderating a discussion with members of Tennessee’s Livability Collaborative, a coalition of 12 state agencies seeking to multiply their interdisciplinary knowledge, resources, and networks to enhance the livability of communities in Tennessee.

1:40 pm – 2:40 pm  Plenary Session 3
Trauma-Informed Practice: Incorporating the Science of Toxic Stress, Brain Development, and ACEs into Public Health Practice

Ruth Ann Shepherd, MD

Trauma-informed practice, and adverse childhood experiences in particular, have become a hot topic for public health. Our plenary speaker, Dr. Ruth Ann Shepherd (a neonatologist and former director of the Division of Maternal and Child Health in the Kentucky Department for Public Health), will examine the studies of ACEs and toxic stress in the context of the Life Course, how it impacts maternal and child health, and how this science is being used to address trauma in populations, programs, and policy. Discover how understanding and responding to trauma fits into the approach to population health and what roles families play in the development and implementation of trauma-informed policy and practices.

Workshop #13
Public Health Response to Hurricane Matthew Flooding in North Carolina

Greg Galfano, MA, CEM, AEMT
Emergency Preparedness Program
Tennessee Department of Health

Jenny Dudzinski, RN, MSN
Assistant State Nursing Director
Tennessee Department of Health

Tennessee Department of Health (TDH) responded to the call for assistance from our neighbors in North Carolina in the aftermath of the October 2016 Hurricane Matthew floods. Twenty TDH Public Health Nurses quickly responded to the call providing disaster health services in NC shelters throughout the flooded region. This workshop will highlight TDH’s public health response to this recent disaster. Panelists will discuss their experiences and explore lessons learned.

Workshop #14
Using a Coordinated Approach to Physical Activity in Schools

Lori Paisley
Executive Director, Office of Coordinated School Health
TN Department of Education

Children being physically active during the day is imperative for healthy weight. We’ve come a long way over the last several years, but balancing all the educational, class room and exercise needs is an ever present challenge to our educators. Lori Paisley, Executive Director of Tennessee’s Coordinated School Health program will discuss how these challenges are being met and successfully addressed. The presenter will review current Tennessee laws, policies, coordination of physical activity policies and practices and describe how the community plays an important role in meeting these challenges.

Workshop #15
New Drug Update

Robin Parker, PharmD
Assistant Professor, College of Pharmacy, Lipscomb University
The world of medications is always evolving with new molecular entities, innovative technologies, and biologics. Staying up-to-date with the plethora of new drugs can be daunting. This session seeks to equip the attendee with practical new drug information complete with clinical relevance and highlights important elements to remember.

Workshop #16
Food Insecurity

Tom Sharp
Director of Policy and Intergovernmental Relations
Metro Public Health Department

Tasha Kennard
Market Director, Nashville Farmers’ Market

Jan Compton, MS
Manager, Office of Sustainable Practices
TN Department of Environment & Conservation

The Nashville Food Systems Assessment, a collaborative effort led by the Nashville Metro Health Department and chaired by the Nashville Farmers’ Market, is taking the first comprehensive look at food systems in the Nashville region. The panelists will describe the process of inventorying everything from farms to farmers markets and stores and the potential policy platform that can be developed from this information. Participants will learn about the statewide food waste project - "Get Food Smart" - that seeks to divert usable foods from Tennessee landfills. Learn more about this statewide effort and the local partners making it happen.

Workshop #19
Success Story: Decreasing Infant Mortality Rates in Shelby County

Leilani Spence, MBA
Deputy Director of Maternal Child Health
Community Health Bureau, Shelby County Health Department

Tennessee has long lagged behind the rest of the country in infant mortality rates. Memphis and Shelby County have historically had some of the highest numbers of infant deaths in the state, in addition to a marked racial disparity. Despite these longstanding trends, recent progress has been made propelling Shelby County’s infant mortality rate to its lowest point.
in recorded history. Leadership from Shelby County will discuss the public health approach to reducing infant mortality and describe successes and lessons learned.

Workshop #20
Public Health Response to Gatlinburg Wildfires

Jack Cochran, EMT-P
East Region ERC, Tennessee Department of Health

Kathy Nelson, BSN, RN
East Region Nursing Director, Tennessee Department of Health

The Tennessee Department of Health responded to the Sevier County wildfires of November 2016 with shelter operations, vaccinations, EMS strike teams, medical examiner support, equipment, subject matter expertise and testing for air and water quality. This workshop will highlight the Tennessee Department of Health’s public health response in this unprecedented event. Panelists will discuss their experiences and explore lessons learned.
