Conference Keynote Speaker, Austin Eubanks

Austin’s story of trauma, over-prescribed medications, and substance use disorder is sure to leave a lasting impression on this year’s conference attendees. One of the 24 injured during the Columbine High School shooting on April 20, 1999 that also left 15 dead including the two gunmen, Austin is now devoting his career to helping others who have journeyed into addiction by way of trauma. He speaks nationally regarding the problems with overprescribing medication, how anonymity adversely effects youth, the importance of the continuum of care, benefits of treatment centered in empowerment vs. powerlessness, and overcoming trauma as it pertains to addiction. He offers amazing insight into the current epidemic and allows others to better understand substance use disorder, symptoms and signs as well as pathways to recovery.

Austin is currently the Program Director and Chief Operations Officer for Foundry Treatment Center in Colorado. He is on the board of directors of Stout Street Foundation and a founding board member for 5280 High School.

Joseph Telfair, DrPH, MSW, MPH

Dr. Telfair is Professor of Public Health Practice and Research, Dual Chair for the departments of Community Health and Health Policy and Management, and the Karl E Peace Distinguished Chair of Public Health in the Jiann-Ping HSU College of Public Health at Georgia Southern University. As President of the American Public Health Association (APHA) and active member of its Georgia affiliate, Dr. Telfair takes a leader-as-servant approach, believing leadership is a unique and privileged opportunity to serve. That philosophy along with more than 32 years of experience as a clinician, community-advocate, academic, evaluator, project director, researcher, academic center director and administrator – nationally and globally – come together to inform Dr. Telfair’s presentation, Accomplishments that Matter - APHA, Affiliates Responding to and Shaping Public Health.

Christina D. Bethell, PhD, MBA, MPH

Dr. Bethell is a professor in the Bloomberg School of Public Health at Johns Hopkins University where she works to advance a new integrated science of thriving to promote early and lifelong health of children, youth and families. Dr. Bethell will present The Epidemiology and Promise of Flourishing for Children, Youth and Families drawing on her work in childhood trauma. She is founding director of the Child and Adolescent Health Measurement Initiative and founder of the National Data Resource Center for Child and Adolescent Health and the National Maternal and Child Health Measurement Research Network. Dr. Bethell seeks to catalyze mindful, data driven community partnerships by developing and liberating data for public use. An overarching goal for Dr. Bethell’s work is to support self, family and community led healing of developmental trauma and to build and translate a new science of thriving into policy and practice.
